Description

Circular tin chandelier with four tin pieces that are attached to the sides and connect to a small, tin circular piece at the top. The large circular bottom part is decorated with plants and flowers, inside are four tin supports that keep the shape circular. In the center is a support that has four sockets for regular light bulbs. Under the sockets is a circular piece of tin punched through so light can shine through and form a pattern. A metal hanging mechanism is attached to the central support.
