White cotton mask with two colorful fish (one on each side of mask) with blue circles (water bubbles). Chandrakant Kumar Bari explains his art, noting “Everyone is badly affected by this virus. Some cleaned more, others did yoga to develop their immunity. Doctors got infected while treating corona patients. When artists could not sell their art, they made masks as everyone needs a mask. I belong to a lower middle-class family living in Madhubani town and I am the first who passed class 12. I attended the Mithila Art Institute and now work as a digital designer using an iPad. But my first passion is Mithila art (from exhibition label text).
