Keris handle

Date

19th or 20th century

Medium

Wood

Description

Typical Madura floral style. Simple shape ascending into a curl at the top. The bulbous curl is typically non-anthropomorphic, however in this case there is a sharp slender beak partially exposed on its underside. Often described as resembling toucans and cockatoos. Heavy floral carving. A crown at the back on top of what looks like a plaque. Two winged figures peek out on either side. At the front are two horse head depictions.
